

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drope, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and of narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, as the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria. Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better." JOHN J. LEVY, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"For several years I recommended your 'Castoria' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results." EDWIN F. PARKER, M. D., New York City.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is a rare thing in the great majority of children's remedies." VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm." EDWARD PARKER, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments." J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

CALIFORNIAN COMING FOR HILO INSTRUCTORS

EXETER, Cal., June 27. — Recently Dr. Leroy Anderson of the State University was asked by the Hilo Boarding School of Hilo, Hawaii, to suggest someone for the position of academic teacher and instructor of agriculture in the school. Dr. Anderson recommended LaRue C. Watson of Farmersville, and then told Mr. Watson what he had done. The school has offered the position to Mr. Watson, and he has accepted, and he and his wife expect to sail for the islands in August or September, after spending the summer with Mrs. Watson's mother in San Luis Obispo.

It is one of the original mission schools of the islands, and is a manual training school for boys. There are about ninety pupils, mostly natives, with some Orientals and other nationalities, but the teaching is all in English. The principal crops of the school farm are bananas, pineapples, taro, citrus and other fruits, vegetables, live stock and stock feed. Mr. Watson says that most of his friends when they hear of his plans first throw up their hands in horror at the prospect of his going so far away, but on second thought they become enthusiastic over the prospect.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS PROVED PROGRESSIVE BUT NOT RADICAL

Bryan Responsible for Platform Democrats Can Unite Upon

By C. S. ALBERT.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 5.—The two dominating political parties of the United States have held two of the most interesting national conventions ever held in this country. The Republicans, at their convention at Chicago, had a battle royal for five days, including a portion of the nights, and the Democrats, at Baltimore, engaged in a more prolonged, and almost as strenuous a fight.

The progressives in both parties were trying to overthrow the machines of the conservatives or reactionaries. At both conventions the opposing factions were very bitter. Some of the incidents and scenes at Chicago and Baltimore are likened to those of days just before the French Revolution in France. Serious riots were expected at Chicago and many fist-fights marked the progress of the Baltimore convention. The tension was so high that upon the slightest provocation men were ready to fly into each other's throats.

Two striking characters took part in the Chicago and Baltimore conventions. Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, for two terms President of the United States, was in Chicago to lead his forces in person, but did not appear on the floor of the convention. He was on the ground, however, and made known his desires and purposes to his friends in the convention. The active participation of a candidate in a convention, which was to pass upon his candidacy, was most unusual, and caused much comment. It is believed by Mr. Roosevelt's friends that Mr. Roosevelt would have fared better had he remained at home. But Mr. Roosevelt followed the suggestion of some of his enthusiastic but unwise supporters and appeared on the scene of action.

Mr. Roosevelt suffered because of the fact that a lot of inexperienced but zealous men undertook to run his campaign. He was outgeneralized. In the pre-convention campaign the inharmonious elements were crippled by internal strife. The opposition encouraged these dissensions in various ways.

Roosevelt's followers are alarmed. The handful of practical politicians who supported Mr. Roosevelt became alarmed and virtually dropped out of the fight. The loose talk of "the wild men" frightened them. They did not care to bolt their party. Since the convention adjourned Colonel Roosevelt is having a desperate time getting his followers to stick to him. Senators Dixon, Borah, Clapp and other well-known men of the Progressive camp prefer to remain in the old party and make another fight to get control there. Senator La Follette, the Wisconsin progressive, is not on friendly terms with Mr. Roosevelt, politically, because he does not think that he got a square deal. He believes that Mr. Roosevelt should have supported him for the nomination for the presidency.

Ormsby McHarg, one of Colonel Roosevelt's chief lieutenants, has announced that he will not go with the Roosevelt people into a new party. He declared that "the wild men" were having too much to do with his friend.

Bryan Live Wire. William Jennings Bryan, thrice the Democratic candidate for the presidency, was the live wire of the Democratic convention. Having enough men to hold the balance of power, he made things lively for the anti-Bryan Democrats. Mr. Bryan did not appear as a candidate, but many of his former supporters believed all along that he wanted the nomination. Early, however, it was demonstrated that Mr. Bryan had a strong following in the convention, but not enough to dominate. The Southern delegates no longer love Mr. Bryan. They have had enough of him, their leaders say, and he set a bad precedent by bolting his party's candidate for governor two years ago.

Platform Conservative. Yet Mr. Bryan, by the aid of his Western worshippers, made the convention conservative. The new platform, literally drawn by Mr. Bryan, meets the approval of conservative as well as radical Democrats. Mr. Bryan did not urge upon the platform committee any new doctrines. He was eager to write a platform upon which the party can win. The tariff plank recommends a tariff for revenue only. Mr. Bryan was satisfied with this recommendation without fixing specific duties or singling out any articles for the free list as in the case of lumber in the Denver platform four years ago. The platform, although it may not be as progressive as other Democratic platforms I have seen, is all right," said Mr. Bryan. "It is progressive and strong."

W. P. HARCOURT TELLS BALTIMORE ABOUT HAWAII

"No more Orientals of the laboring class are coming to Hawaii, and a good many of our white citizens who cultivate sugar estates are sorry that the faithful Chinese are barred under the law," said W. P. Harcourt, a sugar planter of the island of Kauai, one of the Hawaiian group, according to the Baltimore American. "They are our best workers, and before the exclusion policy was applied we could count on a certain regular influx of brawny Mongolians to toll in the cane fields."

"The Chinese now in Hawaii have been here for many years and most of them are getting to be old men. Not many of the Chinese have wives, but in former days not a few of them became husbands of native Kanaka women. It was a good cross, and so likewise the offspring of the Japanese and native women. In recent times, however, the Japanese have been in the habit of sending back to their own land for wives. In most cases I think the self-elected bridegrooms get their parents back in the flowery kingdom to pick out wives for them."

"The matter is finally arranged through the Japanese Consul, the man in the case putting up money for the passage of his intended spouse. The hour that she lands must also be the wedding hour, for the authorities will not allow the fair ones to remain unless claimed and formally mated according to some civil or religious ceremony that both parties consider binding."

"Every now and then a wireless message comes to my plantation which tells one of my young Japanese hired men that he may expect on the arrival of the next ship at Honolulu the girl who has been picked out as his wife. I do not think that in many cases the principals have ever laid eyes on each other. On receipt of the message the man gets permission to go to claim his wife, and pretty soon the pair are domesticated on the estate, and my understanding is they get on as happily as if they had been wedded in the conventional way of the Caucasians."

"Not long ago a ship from Yokohama arrived with 40 or 50 so-called picture brides. Every one of them had been chosen through photographs forwarded to Hawaii some time in advance of the arrival of the originals. Occasionally there is a pathetic case, as when not long ago a very pretty young Japanese maid was forced to take the next ship returning to her old home. Inspection showed that she had trachoma, and the rigid rule that ordered her deportation could not be waived."

LONGER SCHOOL AGE IS DESIRED

LONDON, England, June 20. — In the course of the conference of the National Association of Head Teachers, held at Stoke-on-Trent, a resolution was passed urging:

"That full-time attendance at school should be made obligatory by law up to 14 years of age, that a system of compulsory continuation classes should be established for young persons between 14 and 17 years of age who are not otherwise receiving a suitable education, that it should be the statutory duty of every employer of young persons under 17 years of age to afford facilities for the attendance of such young persons at continuation classes or similar educational institutions, and that a limitation of the hours of labor for such persons should be fixed by law."
